

The MomGirl Edit

A LITTLE LIFE. A FEW FAVORITES. ALL ME.

Officially Austinites.

A rite of passage on our 16th wedding anniversary, with our first ACL in the books. Music is better when we're together, Michael! Even got my first "sprout!" If you know, you know. What a time to be alive!!

Another ACL highlight: we had Veracruz tacos, and they were amazing! The food deserves its own mention—you can actually eat really well here. It's a welcome step up from the usual fair food.

I shared the photos on Instagram, but here are the practical takeaways I wanted to pass along, too. Starting with the hand sanitizer I forgot!

01 / THE FESTIVAL EDIT

Five things worth packing

An empty refillable water bottle. Fill up at the water stations throughout the day.

Hand sanitizer AND tissues. Tiny things that make a big difference, especially when the bathroom runs out of toilet paper.

A plan for food and payment. Eat beforehand and check the options. Pack a snack where permitted; ACL generally prohibits outside food except for medical dietary accommodations. ACL also offers cashless wristband payments.

Sunscreen and a hat. Apply before you leave, bring sunscreen to reapply, and make your own shade. October in Texas still calls for sun protection!

A bandana. A little outfit detail that also comes in handy for the dust.

02 / WHAT I WORE

Sporty, with a little Texas.

White lululemon separates, my Stetson hat, DIFF sunglasses, Vans, and a printed bandana.

03 / FRESH THIS WEEK

The apple aisle has my attention

Even when it doesn't feel like fall outside, the apple aisle gets me in the mood. Honeycrisp is still my favorite, and the kids love green apples.

We also tried one that was pink on the inside. It had an interesting flavor that reminded me a little of endive. Definitely a different apple experience!

Pick up a new variety and do a little taste test at home. Check your local Whole Foods for what they're carrying. Sliced into yogurt, tossed into a salad, or baked with cinnamon—there are plenty of easy ways to enjoy them.

04 / A FEW SEASONAL FINDS

Small ways to make it feel like fall

A boo basket, without overthinking it

I put together a little Halloween basket edit. Pick a few things your person would enjoy; it doesn't need to be a huge production.

Fall outfits for actual Texas weather. I'm still sharing the Abercrombie looks I pulled together. The sale has ended, but the outfit ideas haven't expired.

A quick beauty note: Counter has released its holiday collection. I'm taking a look and will share the picks that catch my eye—no need to rush into holiday shopping just yet.
